

ONLINE ORIENTATION FOR NEWLY ELECTED OFFICIALS

FLC University offers a convenient online orientation program for newly elected officials! This virtual course consists of seven mixed media lessons specific to Florida covering all aspects of municipal governance and the services cities provide. The course is self-paced and can usually be completed in less than 10 hours, total. Upon completion, participants will receive a certificate from FLC University and have a better understanding of their role in local government.

Course cost: $99

A new class begins the first Monday of each month.

Check the FLC Calendar of Events for registration information.

Please note: This course is offered to elected municipal officials only.

This online orientation is an excellent introduction to the responsibilities of an elected municipal official as well as the numerous training opportunities provided by FLC University including the Institute for Elected Municipal Officials I and II, the Leadership Academy I and II, and numerous webinars on timely topics.

For more information about training, webinars and other opportunities, check out the FLC Calendar of Events on the League's website.

QUESTIONS? Contact Christen Barton at 407.367.3443 or cbarton@flcities.com.

“Great self-paced course, look forward to more.”

– Commissioner Tom Harding,
City of Key Colony Beach

“Thanks for this important overview of how our local governments function. This information is vital to effective leadership. It was a good overview of government service and responsibility.”

– Council Member Honey
Minuse, City of Vero Beach