State & Local Gov't Tension is Not New*

- History of larger gov'ts delegating responsibilities to smaller gov'ts; often without sufficient resources
- Increase in mandates; decrease in flexibility to meet them
- Gridlock at federal and state level - local gov'ts are left to solve their own problems
 - Policy vacuum: local gov't steps in to respond to constituent needs and desires
 - Local policy experimentation and innovation have flourished
 - Interest groups opposed to local policies turn to higher level of gov't for redress

*See Riverstone-Newell, "The Rise of State Preemption Laws in Response to Local Policy Innovation,"

State Preemption of Local Government

- Preemption is clearly authorized by Florida Constitution
- Preemption (state law prohibits action) distinguished from Conflict (state law sets standards or minimums and local regulation cannot be inconsistent)
- Traditionally, preemption used when policy necessitated a statewide regulatory scheme (e.g., uniform traffic laws, water permits, building code, fire code)
- Newer trend is “special interest preemption” – no state regulatory scheme or articulated state policy, only a prohibition

Special Interest Preemption – A National Trend

- 1980s – successful national effort by Big Tobacco to preempt local smoking restrictions and bans
- People noticed.....
- NRA soon followed suit and obtained preemptions in majority of states on local gun regulations
- Special interest preemptions are now the most predominant type of preemption we see in Florida
 - Fertilizer industry
 - Telecommunications & Utilities (cell towers, substations, small cell wireless)
 - Agribusiness (Right to Farm Act, Agritourism)
 - Retail & Restaurant industry (polystyrene, shopping carts, franchise conflicts)
 - Homebuilders and Realtors (septic tank inspections and permitting)

Special Interest Preemption – A National Trend

- Powerful special interest groups have the ear of state legislators and national political organizations
- Large corporate interests realized preemption is an efficient and covert way to eliminate unwanted regulations otherwise supported and desired by local citizens
 - Efficient – ready access to and influence on small group of state decision-makers
 - Covert – less public scrutiny of state legislative action (proximity; limited media coverage); the business interest avoids facing an angry public at a local meeting.
- National political groups realized preemption can squelch hot button or “progressive” issues taken up by larger metropolitan localities (e.g., sanctuary cities; LGBTQ issues; minimum wage regulations)

Political Group -- the ALEC Example

- ALEC (“American Legislative Exchange Council”) – a nonpartisan membership organization of state legislators “dedicated to the principles of limited government, free markets and federalism.”
- Membership – state legislators, governors, members of congress, corporations and not-for-profits
- Provides model legislation and model local gov’t resolutions
- American City County Exchange

What's Next? "Super Preemptions"

- National trend – state preempts multiple areas with a single law or imposes financial penalties for violation by local gov't*
 - AZ law allows withholding funds from local gov'ts that pass regulations that contradict state law
 - TX sanctuary city bill provided financial penalties such as withholding grant money and removal of officials from office
 - OK bill prohibited local regulations that do not conform to state law
- Super Preemptions provide political "cover" – targets local regulations that may be popular with constituents (minimum wage laws, "puppy mill" bans, Styrofoam bans) under broad, general preemption
 - Avoids the NC bathroom backlash (NC lost millions in sports and tourism-based revenues following state preemption)
 - Avoids corporate black eyes

What's Next? Local Self-Government's Death by 1000 Cuts

- Targeted removal of specific local powers happens every year
- Targeted preemptions divide and conquer: “this issue doesn’t affect my city so I won’t get involved”

What Can YOU Do?

- Educate – yourself and others
- Counter hyperbole with facts, ask hard questions and tell your story
- Stay focused on municipal purposes and functions
- Ensure municipal contract lobbyists help, not harm
- Engage key influencers & citizens in your community
- Avoid partisanship but understand your audience
- Stick together and have each others' backs on targeted preemptions

Any Don'ts?

- Doing nothing
- Starting your conversations with this is “an attack on Home Rule!” or “a war on cities!”

Educate Yourself & Others

- Many people do not understand Home Rule or the value of having the right to local self-government
- Many people do not understand the differences between state and local government
- Create opportunities to educate citizens and local groups about municipal government
- Create opportunities to educate your legislators about your city and find ways to be partners – not adversaries
- Citizens need to understand they have far greater access and influence at the local level
 - Open meetings laws for local govt vs state legislature
 - Frequency of meetings – year 'round vs 60 days
 - Public testimony and “face time” at local level vs. state level
 - Public notice requirements for ordinances vs. bills and amendments

Counter With Facts, Ask Hard Questions & Tell Your Story

Claim: “Cities are out of control” This bill prevents “piecemeal” “patchwork” “duplicative regulation” or “over-regulation” that “hurts business”

Response:

- Request specifics – which regulation, ordinance and by whom
- Request data and facts on the alleged “harm”
- Use House Republican Conference Checklist as a guide
- Tell your story – why is this local regulation needed in your city? What steps did you take in getting there and why?
- Ask how the state plans to address the problem if locals are preempted – is there a state regulatory scheme in place? If not, why not?

Checklist for Potential Legislation

- 1) What problems do you intend to solve?
- 2) How does this legislation solve those problems?
- 3) Is this legislation consistent with House principles?
- 4) If the legislation passes, will a financial gain be realized by the occupation, industry, employer, or business interests of you, your spouse, or your family?
- 5) Have you considered relevant information from multiple independent sources and thoroughly evaluated alternative solutions?
- 6) Have you sought out stakeholders who have different perspectives and considered their comments or concerns?
- 7) Is the legislation being driven by anecdote or a single occurrence? Is there evidence that the problems are recurring and on-going?
- 8) Are the problems of statewide public concern, or are they only important to a particular profession, industry, demographic subgroup, or constituent? If the problems are not statewide public concerns, why should the Legislature intervene?
- 9) Who wins and who loses if the legislation passes?
- 10) Has similar legislation been considered in the past? What's different this time?
- 11) Does the legislation create the need for a new public records or public meeting exemption? If so, why is creating such an exemption a public necessity?
- 12) Does the legislation require reporting of data so that future legislators can evaluate the effectiveness of the legislation? Would the legislation benefit from a sunset provision?
- 13) Does the legislation trigger the local government mandate provision or any other provision that requires a supermajority vote in order to pass the Legislature?

City Lobbyists Should Help and Not Harm

- Many local governments have lobbyists on retainer
- Require them to engage on preemption issues
- The same lobbyist that helps special interests and big business preempt you may also be your lobbyist!
- Protect against conflicts – require your lobbyist to notify you in advance of any potential conflict in representation – put it in the contract!!

Stay Focused on Core Municipal Issues

- Just because the state or federal government is not acting on something does not make it a municipal issue
- If a special interest group wants your city to act, consider:
 - Is there a non-regulatory means to achieve the objective?
 - Does the issue directly concern core municipal services or functions?
 - Is there a factual or scientific basis for the action?
 - Have you solicited the involvement of those who will be impacted or burdened?
 - Does the action provide adequate standards to those affected?
 - What are the costs vs. benefits -- impacts to property values, impacts on businesses or commercial activity?

Avoid Partisanship

- City elected positions are non-partisan
- The delivery and performance of core municipal services and functions is non-partisan
- Florida's elected municipal officials are a mix of Rs, Ds and NPAs – we must stick together to protect local autonomy
- Preemption is not a partisan issue
 - Research suggests there is greater likelihood of preemption in a political “trifecta”* (one party controls both state chambers and governor’s office)
 - Political trifectas can be R or D and preemptions happen under both types
- Tailor your terminology to your audience
 - “Home Rule” can be a trigger term for some

Key Influencers & Citizens As Allies

- Local civic and neighborhood groups have great networks
- Local business groups often differ on issues from state trade associations
- Local nonprofits have a stake in preemptions
- Corporate interests – hold them accountable/do not give them a pass when they use state organizations to preempt you
- Special Interest groups – can be excellent allies but take caution – they do not share your responsibility to balance competing interests

Messaging – The Framework

- Big Government vs. Hometowns – Voters trust the government closest to them.
- Special Interests & Big Business vs. Local Interests – Voters already think corporate special interests hold too much power and prevent progress at state and federal levels, and many believe preemptions are driven by corporate special interests seeking to protect their profits.
- Economic Policy Choices – many people believe that communities should have the ability to determine their own economic policies and regulations without unwarranted state intrusion.
- Local Democracy – when state government prevents local communities from passing local laws, it threatens local democracy and silences the voices of the people.

Key Messages

- Local Communities know best how to meet the needs of people living there and what their local economy needs to thrive. It is wrong for state government to come in and dictate to local citizens what is best for them.
- Property Rights of Big Business should not be more important than Property Rights of individuals and small businesses (Looking at you, vacation rental companies)
- Politicians & corporate special interests create gridlock at the state level – local governments are where things get done.
- It's tough for average people to have their voices heard by a state government that is miles away and meets infrequently. At least at the local level we can make our voices heard & demand change and accountability.

Use Language That Connects to People

- Instead of “preemption” talk about “state interference”
- If you talk about preemption, talk about the “misuse” or “abuse” of preemption.
 - Most people believe some preemptions are necessary. But when preemption is misused, it walls off entire policy areas from local action, creating a policy vacuum. This leaves local communities powerless to do anything to help their citizens.
- Don’t disparage the role of state government or legislators
- Instead of “Home Rule” try terms like local democracy, local control Local Self-Government, Local Autonomy, Local Decision-making, or Citizen-centered Decision-making

MUNICIPAL HOME RULE – Speaker Notes
Harry Morrison, Jr., Of Counsel
Florida League of Cities 92nd Annual Conference
August 16-18, 2018
Diplomat Beach Resort – Hollywood, Florida

Outline

I. History

A. Statehood: Municipalities in Florida predated statehood.¹

B. State Constitution/Pre-Home Rule: The Legislature shall have the power to establish municipalities, to prescribe their jurisdictions and powers, and to alter or amend the same at any time.²

C. Municipalities Distinguished from Counties: Counties are an "agent or arm of the state." Their purpose is to promote the general public welfare of the state. Municipalities are primarily organized to promote the exclusive needs and conveniences of their citizens.³

D. Dillon's Rule: Municipalities possess only those powers expressly granted by the state legislature, those fairly implied from the powers expressly granted, and those essential to the declared purposes of the corporation. If reasonable doubt exists as to whether a municipality can exercise a certain power, the doubt is, as a matter of law, resolved against the municipality.

1. City had no power to enter into lease whereby municipal property would be leased to a private individual for development as a hotel for private profit.⁴

2. City had no power to enact ordinance which made it unlawful for any person to possess, use, keep or store any submachine gun within the City of Jacksonville.⁵

II. The Home Rule Amendment

A. The Home Rule Amendment/Municipal Home Rule Powers Act: Municipalities shall have governmental, corporate and proprietary powers to enable them to conduct municipal government, perform municipal functions and render municipal services, and may exercise any power for municipal purposes except as otherwise provided by law.⁶

B. Home Rule Powers: Every municipality in this state has the authority to conduct municipal government, or perform municipal functions, and render municipal services. The only limitation on that power is that it must be exercised for a valid "municipal purpose." It would follow that municipalities are not dependent upon the state legislature for further authorization. Legislative statutes are relevant only to determine limitations of authority.

1. City had the home rule authority to issue "double advance refunding bonds."⁷
2. City had the home rule authority to levy special assessments notwithstanding the fact the special assessments were not authorized by state law and the city failed to follow state law when levying the special assessments.⁸
3. City had the home rule authority to seek a total taking of property, rather than a partial taking of property, in order to eliminate a business damage claim notwithstanding the fact it did not need all of the property.⁹

III. Limitations on Home Rule Authority:

A. Municipalities may exercise any power for "municipal purposes," except when "expressly prohibited by law."¹⁰

B. Municipal Purpose: Any activity or power which may be exercised by the state or its political subdivisions. All activities essential to the health, morals, protection, and welfare of the community.¹¹

1. Activities the courts have held serve a "municipal purpose."
 - a. Providing daycare educational facilities.¹²
 - b. Financing a convention center.¹³
 - c. Construction and operation of a marina and a civic auditorium.¹⁴
 - d. Construction and operation of a fishing pier.¹⁵

- h. Promoting the community.¹⁹
- i. Acquisition and maintenance of a golf course.²⁰
- j. Using public property for a sport stadium.²¹
- k. Sale of souvenir photographs.²²
- l. Furnishing catering services in a civic center.²³

2. Competition with Business Irrelevant: The fact the municipality competes with private business is not relevant to the question of whether the activity constitutes a municipal purpose.²⁴

3. Activities that don't constitute a municipal purpose.

- a. Borrowing money simply to reinvest the money and derive a profit on the investment.²⁵
- b. Opting out of an otherwise valid county ordinance.²⁶

C. Prohibited by Law: Florida law provides four fundamental limitations on the exercise of municipal home rule authority: the state legislature, the citizens of the municipality, the state constitution, and a county's charter.

1. The State Legislature

²⁶ City of Ormond Beach v. County of Volusia, 535 So. 2d 302 (Fla. 5th DCA 1988)

a. The power of the state legislature over municipal corporations in Florida is plenary. Therefore, city had no authority to pass an ordinance dissolving a utility authority created by special act of the legislature.²⁷

b. Conflict/Preemption: Municipal ordinances must give way to state law to the extent the ordinance "conflicts with the law" and a municipality's power to regulate in a particular area may be "preempted by general law." The concept of conflict may be distinguished from the concept of preemption in that the latter effectively precludes all municipal regulation in a given area while the former permits regulation, but only to the extent it supplements state law.²⁸

c. Preemption Doctrine: Preemption may be express or implied.

Express preemption requires a specific legislative statement; it cannot be implied or inferred. Express preemption of a field by the legislature must be accomplished by clear language stating that intent. In cases where the legislature expressly or specifically preempts an area, there is no problem with ascertaining what the legislature intended.²⁹

Preemption is implied when the legislative scheme is so pervasive as to evidence an intent to preempt the particular area, and where strong public policy reasons exist for finding such an area to be preempted by the legislature. Implied preemption is found where the state legislative scheme of regulation is pervasive and the local legislation would present the danger of conflict with that pervasive regulatory scheme. In determining if implied preemption applies, the court must look to the provisions of the whole law, and to its object and policy. The nature of the power exerted by the legislature, the object sought to be obtained by the statute at issue, and the character of the obligations imposed by the statute are all vital to this determination.³⁰

²⁷ Lake Worth Utilities v. City of Lake Worth, 468 So. 2d 215 (Fla. 1985).

²⁸ City of Hollywood v. Mulligan, 934 So. 2d 1238, 1243 (Fla. 2006) and Phantom of Brevard, Inc. v. Brevard County, 3 So. 3d 309, 314 (Fla. 2008).

²⁹ Sarasota Alliance for Fair Elections, Inc. v. Browning, 28 So. 3d 880, 886 (Fla. 2010).

³⁰ Id.

1) The more a state legislative scheme regulating a particular topic permits local government to regulate aspects of the topic, the more likely the court will not imply preemption.³¹

2) The more the ordinance deals with a uniquely local issue, the more likely the courts will hold the ordinance is not impliedly preempted by state law.³²

d. Conflict: A conflict exists if the person must violate state law in order to comply with the municipal ordinance or violate the ordinance in order to comply with state law. No conflict exists if the person can satisfy both state law and the municipal ordinance.

The test of conflict between a local government enactment and state law is whether one must violate one provision in order to comply with the other.³³

1) Typically, a local ordinance will not conflict with a state law if the ordinance simply provides more stringent requirements than those contained in state law or provides additional requirements to those contained in state law.³⁴

2) Typically, a local ordinance will not conflict with state law where the local government simply chooses to legislate in an area where the legislature chose to remain silent.³⁵

3) The fact state law provides it is to be "applied uniformly throughout the state" doesn't automatically mean a local ordinance addressing the same topic conflicts with state law.³⁶

2. The Municipality's Citizens: A municipality's charter is like the state's constitution. It's the paramount governing instrument of the municipality and is the fundamental law of the citizens that are served by the municipality.

a. Charter Amendments: Florida law provides a process by which the citizens of a municipality may submit to the electors of the municipality a proposed amendment to its charter which amendment may place a limitation on the exercise of the municipality's home rule authority. Once approved by the electors, the amendment becomes a part of the municipality's charter and thus a part of the municipality's organic law.

³⁵ Mulligan, supra; Phantom of Brevard, Inc., supra.

³⁶ Phantom of Brevard, Inc., supra.

Once the citizens of a municipality have spoken through their charter, the citizens are entitled to have the charter provision enforced.³⁷

Court upheld a charter provision that permitted citizens to initiate a referendum to repeal a zoning ordinance.³⁸

b. State Law: The citizens' power to use the charter amendment process to limit municipal home rule authority is limited in the same manner and to the same extent as the governing body's exercise of the municipality's home rule authority. A charter amendment that conflicts with state law will yield to the state law regardless of the fact the municipality's citizens voted in favor of the charter amendment.

1) Court held citizens' effort to use the initiative process contained in a city's charter to adopt an ordinance requiring binding arbitration in the city's collective bargaining process was invalid because it conflicted with the state's collective bargaining laws.³⁹

2) Court held citizens' effort to amend the city's charter to prohibit the Orlando Utilities Commission from constructing a coal-fire electric generating plant was invalid because it conflicted with state law establishing the Orlando Utilities Commission.⁴⁰

3. The State Constitution: Florida's Constitution places several fundamental limitations on the exercise of municipal home rule authority.

a. Annexation: The power to define the manner in which municipalities may annex unincorporated areas is vested with the state legislature.⁴¹

b. Extra-Territorial Powers: The power to define the manner in which municipalities may exercise extra-territorial powers is vested with the state legislature.⁴²

c. Taxation: A municipality may levy only those taxes authorized by general law of the state legislature.⁴³ Examples of taxes include public service taxes, business license taxes, local option sales taxes, and local option gas taxes.

d. Fees: "Fees" aren't "taxes;" therefore, municipalities can raise revenues through fees under the municipality's home rule authority. Examples of fees include impact fees, service fees, regulatory fees, franchise fees, and special assessments.

1) City has the home rule authority to levy impact fees.⁴⁴

Raising expansion capital by setting connection charges, which do not exceed a pro rata share of reasonably anticipated costs of expansion, is permissible where expansion is reasonably required, if use of the money collected is limited to meeting the costs of expansion. Users 'who benefit especially, not from the maintenance of the system, but by the extension of the system . . . should bear the cost of that extension.'⁴⁵

2) A municipality has the home rule authority to levy fees designed to offset the cost of providing services to its citizens.⁴⁶

Implicit in the power to provide municipal services is the power to construct, maintain and operate the necessary facilities. The fixing of fair and reasonable rates for utility service provided is an incident of the authority given by the Constitution and statutes to provide and maintain those services.⁴⁷

In fact, nothing prohibits a city from deriving a modest profit from the operation of its utilities.⁴⁸

3) Cities have the home rule authority to levy fees designed to offset the cost of regulating activities undertaken within the municipality.⁴⁹

It is, of course, well settled that the power to regulate includes the power to license as a means of regulating, and that a reasonable license fee may be charged in an amount sufficient to bear 'the expense of issuing the license and the cost of necessary inspection or police surveillance connected with the business or calling license, and all the incidental expenses that are likely to be imposed upon the public in consequence of the business licensed.⁵⁰

4) A city has the home rule authority to levy special assessments.⁵¹

[A special assessment] is imposed upon the theory that that portion of the community which is required to bear it receives some special or peculiar benefit in the enhancement of value of the property against which it is imposed as a result of the improvement made with the proceeds of the special assessment. It is limited to the property benefited, it is not governed by uniformity and may be determined legislatively or judicially. . . . There are two requirements for the imposition of a valid special assessment. First, the property assessed must derive a special benefit from the service provided. Second, the assessment must be fairly and reasonably apportioned among the properties that receive the special benefit.⁵²

[S]ervices such as general law enforcement activities, the provision of courts, and indigent health care are . . . functions required for an organized society. However, unlike fire protection services, those services provide no direct, special benefit to real property. Thus, such services cannot be the subject of a special assessment.⁵³

Although a special assessment is typically imposed for a specific purpose designed to benefit a specific area or class of property owners, this does not mean that the cost of services can never be levied throughout a community as a whole. Rather, the validity of a special assessment turns on the benefits received by the recipients of the services and the appropriate apportionment of the cost thereof. This is true regardless of whether the recipients of the benefits are spread throughout an entire community or are merely located in a limited, specified area within the community.⁵⁴

⁵⁰ Id. at 172.

⁵⁴ Sarasota Co. v. Sarasota Church of Christ, Inc., 667 So. 2d 180, 183 (Fla. 1996).

5) A city has the home rule authority to impose franchise fees.⁵⁵

A franchise fee is a bargained for fee charged a private company for the privilege of using the city's rights-of-way. The franchise fee consists of three main components: it is fair rent for the use of the city's rights-of-way to derive a private profit; it is consideration for the city to agree not to compete with the private party during the term of the franchise agreement; and it is a fee paid the city to offset the costs incurred by the city as a result of the private party's disparate or exclusive use of public property.⁵⁶

e. Fee v. Tax: The amount of a "fee" must have some rational relationship to the cost of the service, or the cost of regulation, or the benefit derived by the payment. In other words, the payer receives a quid pro quo for the payment. A "tax" on the other hand is a forced extraction for the general benefit of the public. There is no quid pro quo; that is, the payer doesn't always derive a benefit from the payment.

[Fees] are charged in exchange for a particular governmental service which benefits the party paying the fee in a manner not shared by other members of society. . . . [Taxes] are an enforced burden imposed by sovereign right for the support of the government, the administration of law, and the exercise of various functions the sovereign is called on to perform.⁵⁷

[A] legally imposed special assessment is not a tax.
